ANNOUNCEMENT.

I am now ready to do any kind of painting or paper hanging. Let me make you an estimate on any painting or papering you wish done.

Do you know that extensive exposure tests conducted under careful scientific directions have proven the greater durability and protective qualities of a paint prepared with White Lead alone shows early tendency to chalk off the surface, decreasing in decorative and protective qualities as the chalking progresses. The addition of zinc oxide with its hardening properties prevents early chalking of the lead and gives a much more durable paint.

I mix zinc oxide in my paint with expert skill.

CELLAR CHAMPS DEFEAT LEAGUE LEADERS SUNDAY

Mt. Sterling Club is Victor Over Maysville Cardinals in Sunday Afternoon Game at Forest Avenue Park.

The Cardinals tightened up considerably after the fracas of Friday but were forced to take their second straight defeat this time at the hands of the lowly tail enders, Mt. Sterling, who performed wonderfully on the field and showed a bunch of pepper aided mainly by our old friend Billy Monk behind the bat who played his first game with the Essex. The breaks of the game were entirely against the Cards who outthrew their opponents but daring base running at times when hits followed and would have been runs cost the local several chances to cross the platter. Bosken was a trifle unsteady at times though whiffing ten men he walked three and luckily none scored. The visitors used rare judgment in executing hit and run, and squeeze plays.

The Card's lone tally was the first marked of the afternoon when Slayback's long fly fell in the weeds in right center for a home run in the fourth.

The Essex took the lead in the fifth on Pott's single through short and on Rohen's two base hit Potts reached third and scored when Slayback dropped Dreesel's relay of the hit, Rohen taking third. On a squeeze play Rohen came tearing in on Bark's hunt for the second run. The visitors added two more in the ninth. Craig was safe on Slayback's error, taking second when Monk heat out one in front of the plate. A sacrifice by Ellis advanced both runners a base, Connolly's poor throw to catch Craig off third allowed him to score and Monk to take third. Potts singled to center scoring Monk.

Notes of the Circuit

It is merely a suggestion that the locals try some practice during the week in order that they might regain their confidence. They seem to be lost on their new diamond and lack their usual ginger and aggressiveness and were by far inferior to the lowly Essex in spirit and all round work.

The work on the new park is progressing nicely and should be completed by the next game on Sunday when Potts makes their first appearance of the season here. It would be greatly appreciated by the critics if the management would see that the press box is completed for the next game. It is utterly impossible to give a just decision or score a game correctly under the present conditions with the stands so crowded and the usual interruptions caused by the asking of foolish questions by nearby fans.

At a meeting to be held Wednesday night in the Phoenix Hotel, Lexington, it will be decided whether the four games a week schedule will be started. Should it be accepted the present season will come to a close with the Cardinals the winners of the pennant of the first portion and the new season will start either Thursday or Sunday.

NEW YORK VISITED BY MOST SERIOUS STORM IN HISTORY

Fifty Reported Killed in New York City's First Cyclone Which Struck Nation's Largest City Late Sunday Afternoon.

New York, June 12. — Nearly 50 persons are read today in the wake of the first cyclone in the history of New York. The hurricane struck the city late yesterday.

The list of injured stands at approximately 100. The heaviest life toll was taken at City Island, a resort suburb, where the gale, accompanied by rain, hail and lightning, caused casualties estimated as high as 30 dead. City Island appeared war-wrecked today.

Most of the victims were caught bathing or boating. The storm assumed the fury of a tornado as it swept up the sound. A twisting cloud that touched the water ripped along at nearly ninety miles an hour, leveling everything in its path.

Pleasure yachts went over like toy boats. A glass-cabin yacht, struck by the full fury of the blast, went down in a cavern of water and never reappeared. Little boats, dotting the sound, were wiped from sight like chessmen dashed from a board by an unseen hand.

Nothing like the storm was known in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, for the sound and bays about New York have been free from the peril of cyclones. Yesterday's brief blast, however, had all the characteristics of a prairie twister.

On land the tornado assumed the same terrifying proportions. Trees were whirled up from their roots and hurled through the air like giant missiles. One was sent smashing through the roof of an inn, killing a woman and a little girl.

Huge advertising signs in New York City, towering over skyscrapers, were slapped down as if by an invisible hand.

In New York City proper six persons were killed and 27 injured when the wind and torrential rains tore a Ferris wheel from its base at Point Park and entangled it through the air to the beach.

BREAKS WRIST IN FALL.

Mrs. Phillip Fist, venerable mother of Mr. Charles Fist, suffered a fall at her home in Sixth street Sunday suffered a broken wrist. Because of Mrs. Fist's advanced age, the accident is a very serious one.

RETURNS TO BLOOM ON BRITISH SOIL.

Lady Astor left the United States as she had entered it, pleading the cause of the league of nations, and urging this country to become a member. In her farewell speech at a New York banquet in her honor she brought America to be the Good Samaritan of Europe. Throughout her discourse she constantly referred to the American people as "we." It is to be hoped that her use of the pronoun was in the editorial sense, as American do not take kindly to be classed with expatriates.

Lady Astor's style of appeal is sufficiently indicated by the following quotation from her speech: "The other day I saw that the American government asked the British government to help protect her oil interests in Mesopotamia through the league of nations. I am glad to say she did it. Soon after I saw that the allies sent a note asking America to join them and inquire into atrocities against a Christian population. America refused. I ask you, which is the more important in the end, oil concessions or bleeding humanity?"

For the purpose of proving her point that the United States is a cold blooded wretch in the family of nations, Mrs. Astor takes serious liberties with the facts. When has this country asked help of the British government, either in the matter of oil or anything else? The truth of the oil controversy is that Mr. Hughes made a peremptory demand upon Great Britain along with the other allies that American rights acquired through participation in the war must be recognized, and that among them was the equal right of all the allied and associated nations in the development of mandated territory, including Mesopotamia. At the time Mr. Hughes took his firm stand, Great Britain was on the point of grabbing the whole Mesopotamian oil field for her own, but the sudden assertion of right by the American government forestalled her designs.

Mrs. Astor is equally at variance with the facts when she pictures the United States as refusing to aid "bleeding humanity" in declining to become a participant in the investigation into Armenian atrocities. In countless ways, short of actually going to war with Turkey, this country has aided the Armenians. Great Britain and the allies, on the other hand, defeated Turkey in the war and had it in their power to drive the Turk out of Europe and release the Armenian nation, but European diplomatic exigencies intervened, and the impossible Armenian situation was prolonged. Everybody knows what the trouble is in that part of the world—Armenians and Turks cannot live together in amity—and it takes no investigation to establish that fact. I would have been a waste of time for the United States to take part in any such grotesque inquiry.

Lady Astor has returned to her own shores. May she enjoy rest and contentment there, while she engaged in British policies to the limit of her heart's desire. But the next time she visits her fore-sworn country let her remember that Americans need no instruction from the British Parliament or any of its members as to their political faith. Neither does the American nation need to have its morals moulded according to the British conception. America has a moral standard all its own, both domestic and foreign, that compares very favorably in results achieved with that of any other country.

EARTHS IN THE UNIVERSE.

The inquiring or mildly interested layman is apt to be bewildered by the readiness of scientists or pseudo-scientists to reverse each other on the subject of the possibility of human life on the other planets of our solar system. We have become accustomed to talk about the "canals" of Mars, Nicola Tesla, for example, not only regarding them as prodigious constructions by human agency but going so far as to contend that the builders were trying to signal the inhabitants of our earth by means of some sort of celestial wireless. Now comes Prof. Arrhenius, the Swedish astrophysicist, with the confident assertion that Mars is covered with hard frozen sand, that human or other life on that planet is inconceivable, and that the "canals" are nothing but enormous earth-quake fissures. Mars is dead and dry Venus, on the other hand, is "dripping wet" and in about a billion years it may be in condition to support human life, about that length of time having been required for our own earth to ripen into proper condition. It seems that the recent report of the Smithsonian Institution also takes the view that life on Mars is not possible.

It may be true that there are both "dead" and living planets, that the earths in the universe are born, so to speak, develop, flourish, and in the course of incalculable ages "die" and break up to contribute "star-dust" toward the formation of new spheres. But reason demands the conclusion that the majority of earths are in condition to support life and are inhabited. Otherwise there would be a waste of energy and material, a defeat of the manifest plan of the universe, that it inconceivable.

MEDICINE AND POLITICS.

It is stated that some years ago the American Medical Association, in convention at Atlantic City, adopted a resolution declaring that alcohol is not necessary for the effective treatment of any disease. Now, according to report, the American Medical Association is preparing to reverse this view at this year's convention at St. Louis. It is stated that relief will be demanded from "the present unsatisfactory conditions that control the prescribing and dispensing of whisky," and the chairman of the committee that framed the new resolution is quoted as saying that "51 per cent. of the physicians of the country consider the use of whisky necessary in the practice of medicine."

The average layman is apt to wonder why the 51 and 49 per cent. of physicians can not get together on this question of the therapeutic value of alcohol. Perhaps some part of the answer is to be found in investigations reported some time ago tending to show that the majority of physicians in the cities and big towns believe alcohol has therapeutic value while the majority of physicians in the rural districts deny that it has such value. Such variation of view according to locality would seem to indicate that medicine is not yet a sufficiently exact science to be altogether independent of politics.

UNCLE TED'S BED-TIME STORIES.

"Believe me, eleven billion dollars or more is SOME money," said Jack as he and Ruth were talking about the money owed the United States by foreign nations. "Have you any idea how much it is?"

"I can't think of it," answered Ruth. "It's too much for me. Ten dollars is more than I can see at one time."

"Well, anyway that's the amount the foreign nations owe us for money loaned them," said Jack.

Hello, kiddies," said Uncle Ted, "what are you two up to now?"

"I just read," answered Jack, "where the foreign countries owe the United States more than eleven billion dollars and we were trying to think how much that is. I remember you telling us a long time ago, something about this money."

"Yes, Jack," said Uncle Ted, "there is probably no bigger or more important problem facing our government today than this huge debt, the money for which was raised by the various Liberty bond drives and through other sources, which I will tell you of later. About a year ago Secretary of the Treasury Mellon talked over with President Harding how this money could be best refunded. President Harding went into the matter at once with Congress and both these big men pointed out that it would be a fine way to have these debts put into the form of bonds, carrying a certain amount of interest and with a set date when they should be paid. A bill was finally passed by Congress creating what is known as the World War Debt Commission. Secretary Mellon is chairman of the commission and the other members are: Secretary Hughes of the State Department, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Senator Smoot of Utah and Representative Burton of Ohio. The headquarters of the commission are located in the Treasury Department building and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Elliott Wadsworth has been selected secretary."

"Where to start on this big work is no small matter. The commission, first of all, making a deep study of the conditions existing in all the countries whose debts to us must be paid. Some nations will be able to pay sooner than others and this will guide the commission in its final plan. In gathering this information the State Department, Treasury and Department of Commerce will be able to give them a great deal of information which will prove of help, particularly in view of the fact that the heads of these three departments are members of the commission."

"You kiddies, as well as many citizens of the United States, have forgotten from where all this money came that was loaned abroad. First of all, there was loaned under the various Liberty loan drives $3,434,774,829. When the war was over the Secretaries of War and Navy sold on credit a lot of left over war material for $574,673,710. From the American Relief Commission came supplies worth $83,093,963. The United States Grain Corporation provided $56,858,802 worth of food stuffs. This made a total of $10,150,401,305.49. In addition to this the interest due and unpaid on those debts amounts to $1,178,879,925.88."

"There are eleven countries obligated for money advanced under the liberty loan acts. These countries are Belgium, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, France, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Liberia, Rumania, Russia, and Serbia. Most of these same countries are debtors for surplus war materials, as are also Latvia, Estonia, Poland and Lithuania. Credit sales from the United States Grain Corporation, and the American Relief Commission add Armenia, Austria, Finland and Hungary to the list of debtors."

"This means that the commission has a total of nineteen countries to deal with in this matter. Everybody knows that practically every one of these countries is unable to pay either the principal or interest on its debts at this time or even in the immediate future. For this reason the plan is to refund the debts by having the countries issue bonds to the United States. These bonds are provided by the law creating the commission, shall carry a rate of interest not lower than 4 1/2 per cent and they must mature not later than June 15, 1947. As soon as this refunding plan has been worked out in its operation, the law provides that the commission shall have no further control of the matter."

"After these bonds have been issued they may be sold or held by the United States government. This will be determined later, so that whatever is best for the United States can be done. Of course, after a while, when the commission has some deeper into a study of these countries and their debts, more laws may be necessary, and many changes may have to be made in the present plans. But the main point is that President Harding and his able advisors are going carefully into this important matter so that the money can be done for the United States."

"The commission has already invited negotiations with all the debtor nations and before long we hope to see the entire debt adjusted so that it can be paid with as little trouble as possible considering the huge amounts due and the condition of many of the debtors."

Chicago, Ill. — "A million dollars' worth of good citizenship is what we invested in when we organized the Union League Boys' Club," declared Judge Victor P. Arnold of the Chicago Juvenile Court, one of the founders of the club and a leading spirit in the plans for Chicago Boys' Week, which has just come to its close.

One of the most forceful means of teaching boys the lessons of good citizenship is the motion picture, and the screen is put to active use by every organization working for the right training of American youth. During Boys' Week educational films provided by the Society for Visual Education, picturing the duties of a citizen and chapters of the story of America, were shown to thousands of the boys who will be the citizens of tomorrow.

"There is no more fertile field for constructive work than the boy," continued Judge Arnold. "We say that the boy is the heart and brains of the community. If so, let us take care of him. Since our first Chicago Boys' Week a year ago, juvenile delinquency has decreased among boys just 20 per cent. The decrease among girls has been 18 per cent. These are the exact figures."

"I attribute this great decrease in delinquency to the fact that Chicago is backing the boy. We are trying to make him realize that he is somebody, that he has some responsibility, instead of thinking of himself as just a waste product of the streets about whom nobody cares an iota until he is earning money. Boys' Week not only awakens the interest of the boy in himself but also gives the community an opportunity to think about boys. We seek to hold this interest during the other fifty-one weeks of the year."

Chicago is one of the best organized cities in the world in the matter of boys' activities. These organizations are taking up the boys' leisure hours and, according to Judge Arnold's experience with thousands of boys, it is in after-school hours that their difficulties arise. To take care of this leisure time the Union League two years ago organized a boys' club in one of the most congested districts of Chicago. An old building was remodeled to provide club rooms, library, gymnasium, shower and swimming pool, and motion picture equipment was installed. Every Saturday night from 8 to 9 hundreds of boys see a program of carefully selected movies. The younger boys pay a membership fee of five cents a month, the older boys ten cents.

At the end of nine months a survey showed that cases of delinquency from that neighborhood had dropped off just 70 per cent. Today the club has 1500 members, the boys using the club rooms for all sorts of recreation instead of braving windows and getting into trouble generally. Other clubs throughout the country are doubtless doing equally good work.

Pertinent statistical data were quoted by Judge Arnold bearing on the relation of clubs to the morals of youth. He said that "of 7,000 boys charged with violations of criminal laws before the English courts, less than 4 per cent had affiliations with any kind of boys' club. Of 20,000, 25,000 delinquents, only 5 per cent belonged to the Boy Scouts—a genuine testimonial to the valuable work of that boy-building organization. I suppose the percentage in England would hold good here." More well-directed boys' clubs, in the opinion of this authority, would mean less delinquency and a higher grade of citizenship.

TRIP TO ENGLAND AWAITS BOY LIVESTOCK JUDGES.

The Maryland team of agricultural club boys who, in competition with similar teams from other states, won the grand prize of a trip to Europe, in the livestock judging contest at the Southeastern Fair held at Atlanta, Georgia, last October, will sail from New York for England, June 14, on the Carmania arriving in Liverpool about June 22.

The team, which is composed of Warren Rice, 17, of Symar, Joseph Glacken, 15, of Rising Sun, and George Worrell, 16, of North East, was trained by W. C. Snarr of the co-operative extension service of the United States Department of Agriculture and the University of Maryland.

All the competitors in the contest were required to judge three rings of dairy cattle, three of beef cattle, two of sheep, and four of swine.

The boys will be accompanied on the European trip by C. A. Cobb, editor of the Southern Ruralist and superintendent of the fair's contest, and by representatives of the co-operative extension service.

Which reminds us of the new "curb" the moving picture exchange. At Forty-ninth street and Seventh avenue, the men gather who are responsible for a large part of the distribution of films. They scatter gossip of the players in with their business talk and add much to the rest of the passersby in that neighborhood.

The largest wedding of the year in New York City! Now, whose would you think that would be? None other than of Josephine Corrao and Salvatore Francaviglia. Who are they? Just two popular young people of Little Italy. Five thousand guests, no fewer! St. Patrick's Cathedral on Mulberry street, holds only 2,000, but the others will crowd in some how, or wait around the door. The bride lives at 277 Elizabeth street, which is not one of our fashionable avenues, but it is quiet evidently is one of our most neighborly ones.

Any wedding is important to someone, whether there are 5,000 guests or none at all. And not many have been more important to the bride than was that of Mrs. Margaret Killean and Robert Egan, which took place the other day. For the bride was released from prison just long enough to have the ceremony performed. After her first husband died two years ago, misfortune drove her to extremes. Mrs. Killean said, and recently she was committed to the Tombs for desertion of her youngest child. Young Egan had learned to love her in the meantime and when he heard of her plight,

Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Mrs. R. L. Mattingly, 207 West Second street, Maysville, says: "I was in a bad condition with my back and kidneys. I couldn't get my proper rest at night owing to the dull misery in my back. I was feeling so miserable I often had to let my housework go undone. I was dizzy by spells and also suffered from rheumatic pains. I have been so bad that I couldn't walk without pushing a chair in front of me and my lower limbs were very painful. My kidneys were in a bad condition owing to their irregular action. My mother had used Doan's Kidney Pills successfully and that led me to send to Wood & Son's Drug Store and get a couple boxes. After using them I was all right. I have felt well since using Doan's and recommend them gladly." Price 50c., at all dealers. A clerk at the Park Avenue hotel was disturbed the other day when he informed a guest that a room he had wanted was no vacant, to be told, "I can't change my room until sundown now. My heels are all out." "Your bees?" the clerk exclaimed and looked nervously about for an authority. "Yes I always carry them with me. You saw the box?" replied the unperturbed guest; and it developed that he was stating a mere fact. The oblong box with a glass front rested on the window sill of the room, with an opening at one end, for the bees, who were then out looking for honey in the city streets but would return, he insisted at sun down. It makes no difference where he stops, he explained. He always lets them out and they always come back. He was correct, for shortly after sundown, he shut the box and was ready to be moved to another room.

FISHING CONTEST

BLOCK SIDEWALKS

POLICEMEN BUSY!

The Irish Are Always Starting Some thing. That Is What They Say in Bristol, Connecticut.

There is a very popular young hardware dealer by the name of Peter Cawley who bought a "Main Street" store and made enough money out of it to buy half a block. Last summer he wondered what was the matter with his fishing tackle business, so he started a contest—and trouble.

Every prize fish, or string of fish which was a candidate for a prize had to be exhibited on a cake of ice in Cawley's window. Crowds gathered around the window so much that they blocked the sidewalk, and the chief of police complained of the nuisance. But the chief was a candidate for re-appointment and so he didn't want to interfere.

So many people drove in from near-by towns and villages to see these prize fish that they had to get extra parking space. The story of this novel contest spread so rapidly that hundreds of sporting goods and hardware stores in all parts of the country are running similar fishing contests this year.

The difference between golf and fishing is that in golf the man is no gentleman if he doesn't tell the truth about his score, but in fishing he is no sport if he doesn't make the size of his fish "interesting."

There is a little stream near Bristol called Mine Brook. It is about big enough for a grasshopper to make through without wetting his wings. Practically all of the 3 and 4 pound trout and 5 and 6 pound bass were "caught in Mine Brook," according to the contestants, for it was a rule of the contest that they must tell where they caught their prize fish.

Cawley's contest created so much interest that when the hunting season came, the sportsmen insisted that they exhibit their partridge and quail and wild duck and wild geese and deer in the front window—but when it came to a big bull moose the smiling Cawley set down his foot and said it would have to be put on the sidewalk. It will be a lot wiser or village this year that doesn't hold a fishing contest.

BUFFALO HERDS INCREASING

ON FEDERAL GAME PRESERVES.

Forty-six new buffalo calves are reported on three of the four game preserves maintained by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture for the special protection of buffalo. On the National Bison Range, in Montana, there are 417 buffalo, including 28 calves born this spring. Fifteen calves are reported at the Wind Cave preserve, in South Dakota, and 3 at Niobrara, Nebr.

The department has been very fortunate in maintaining the herds established at these three points and at Sullys Hill, N. Dak. There are relatively few large buffalo herds now scattered over the country, and the Biological Survey has made special efforts to provide suitable ranges and protection for what threatened a few years ago to become an extinct species of native American animal.

George Ade is considered the greatest slang artist in this country. Slang is gradually getting to be the characteristic American language. But where did George find all his nouns, and adjectives, and adverbs, and — and so on.

We have discovered a slang work that has been passed down to us by the Eskimo. You have "parked" your automobile in the street, or if you have no machine, you have "parked" your hat on a hat-rack. Well, now! In the Pathe feature "Nanook of the North," Nyla, the fair heroine, "parks" her baby in her fur "parka" which hangs from her shoulders. See? "Parka"—"parked." Hence, "parked" in a "parka." And there you are, George!

CLAYHOLE MURDER CASES ARE BEGUN MONDAY IN BOYD

Judge W. C. Halbert Will Try Famous Breathitt County Election Cases On a Change of Venue Beginning Monday.

Cattlettsburg, Ky., June 12. — Assurance that there will be absolute fairness and that politics will not play the slightest part in the promise of court officials in connection with the trials of the 'Clayhole murder cases' which begin here today.

Thirteen men will be tried for killing four men last election day at Clayhole precinct, on Troublesome Creek, Breathitt county. Seventeen men were wounded in the encounter, the ballot box thrown into the creek and shot at, and the election prevented, thus disfranchising more than 500 voters.

The murder cases were brought to Cattlettsburg, Boyd county, on change of venue from Jackson, Breathitt county, granted by Circuit Judge Sam Hurst on May 2. The commonwealth obtained the transfer, declaring that as the tragedy arose out of political passions and prejudices in Breathitt county the trials should be for removed from that county. Judge Hurst won his judicial seat in the election. No case in Kentucky of recent years has attracted more attention.

Circuit Judge W. C. Halbert, of the Twentieth judicial district, composed of Boyd, Lewis and Greenup counties, will preside at the trials. He announced that he would pass the civil docket and let all litigation of the district be sidetracked to allow immediate consideration of the Breathitt cases to begin on June 12, the opening day of his court term.

All the cases will be docketed and called as they were docketed and set in Breathitt county and the trial of the cases may consume weeks. Possibly a hundred witnesses will be called to tell the story of the bloody encounter around the little voting house on Troublesome Creek.

Preparations have been made for an extra large number of deputies to maintain order at the trials, although it is not anticipated that a great local crowd will be attracted.

EIGHTH GRADE COLORED COMMENCEMENT MONDAY

Common School Graduates of Local Colored Schools to Receive Certificates Monday Night.

Final school exercises for the Maysville colored schools began Sunday afternoon with the baccalaureate sermon to the graduates of the Colored High School at Scotts M. E. church by Rev. Hickman.

The eighth grade closing exercises will be held at the county court house Monday evening in charge of Miss Ashe, one of the instructors in the colored school. This eighth grade closing is always one of the features of commencement week in the colored schools and is always one of the best programs of the school-closing season. Admission is free and it is certain that those who attend will be amply repaid.

Final commencement for the High School will be held at the Washington Opera House Wednesday evening. There are seven graduates as follows: Thomas W. Green, Hattie R. Humphrey, John W. Simpson, Lorene E. Stokes, James A. Jackson, Emma P. Moorehead and Jesse R. Howe.

SAVE WHEN THE SAVING IS GOOD

Slowly but surely business conditions are improving. Men laid off for long or short periods, are going back to work. Merchants and manufacturers report better business. The farmer whistles as he works for the lean year is passing and, best of all, the Association is making another payment on tobacco.

Now is the time the wise folks open savings accounts or add to the accounts they already have. BEGIN NOW TO SAVE AS THE SAVING GETS BETTER.
